

1. This deed of appointment is made between Northgate Holdings Limited, a company incorporated in England and Wales, and the person whose name appears beneath the ruled line at the foot of this instrument. 2. The parties agree that every obligation recorded in the schedule attached to this deed is owed severally, and that no waiver of any term shall be inferred from a failure to enforce it on an earlier occasion. 3. Notice under this deed is given in writing to the registered office of the party to be served, and is treated as received on the second working day after the day on which it was posted. 4. The law of England and Wales governs this deed and every dispute arising out of it, and the courts of England and Wales have exclusive jurisdiction over any such dispute. 5. Nothing in this deed creates a partnership between the parties, nor authorises either of them to act as the agent of the other in any dealing with a third party. 6. Each party shall keep the terms of this deed confidential at all times during its currency, and for a period of three years after the day on which it has come to an end. 7. Where a sum falls due under this deed and is not paid on the day it is due, interest accrues on that sum at four per cent above the base rate from time to time in force. 8. A person who is not a party to this deed has no right to enforce any of its terms, and the parties may vary or rescind it without the consent of any such person. 9. If a court holds any provision of this deed to be invalid, that provision is severed and the remainder of the deed continues in force as though the severed words had never been written. 10. The schedule referred to in clause 2 may be amended only in writing signed by both parties, and an amendment made in any other manner has no effect on the obligations recorded in it. 11. Neither party is liable for a failure to perform an obligation under this deed where that failure is caused by an event outside its reasonable control and it has told the other party promptly. 12. The rights and remedies recorded in this deed are cumulative, and none of them excludes a right or a remedy that either party would otherwise have at law or in equity. 13. Any assignment of a right under this deed requires the prior written consent of the other party, and consent may not be withheld unreasonably where the assignee is a member of the same group. 14. Time is not of the essence in the performance of any obligation under this deed unless one party has served a notice on the other making time of the essence for that obligation. 15. This deed records the whole of the agreement between the parties on its subject matter, and it replaces every earlier draft, understanding and assurance relating to that subject matter. 16. A notice served under clause 3 is not validly served if it is sent only by electronic means, whatever the parties may have done in the course of dealing with one another before that date. 17. Each party shall pay its own costs of the negotiation and execution of this deed, and neither may recover those costs from the other under any provision of it. 18. The obligations recorded in clauses 6 and 7 survive the ending of this deed, however it ends, and remain enforceable against each party after the day on which it ends. 19. Nothing in this deed obliges either party to enter into a further agreement of any kind, and neither may treat a statement of intention as an offer capable of acceptance. 20. This deed may be executed in counterparts, each of which when executed is an original, and all of which together constitute one and the same instrument.
